It is with great excitement and anticipation that I invite you to attend the AAA Annual Meeting, August 6–9, being held in Washington, D.C. Fran Ayres and the Annual Meeting Planning Committee have done an outstanding job in ensuring that there is "something for everyone." I know that you will want to start the new academic year by meeting with your far-flung friends, updating your teaching skills, and enhancing your research potential by attending the 2006 Annual Meeting. Register now!

The Marriott Wardman Park Hotel is conveniently located, with a subway stop on the corner ready to inexpensively whisk you away to the Mall for visits to the Smithsonian Museums and National Monuments. Washington, D.C. offers many fun activities for families, from visiting Tai Shan at Fujifilm Giant Panda Exhibit at the Smithsonian Zoological Park to the Museum of Natural History.

I'm looking forward to hearing our plenary and luncheon speakers. Eugene Rice (Senior Scholar of the American Association of Colleges and Universities) will open the meeting, setting the stage for our discussions of issues critical to the future of accounting education. Anthony Hopwood (Peter Moores Dean, Said Business School, University of Oxford, and Editor, Accounting, Organizations and Society) will give the Presidential Scholars address at the Tuesday morning plenary session. Tuesday's luncheon speaker will be New York Times' Chief Financial Correspondent, Floyd Norris. Wednesday will begin with John Fellingham, AAA VP–Research, and Joel Demski, AAA Past-President, leading a plenary session entitled, "Is Accounting an Academic Discipline?" They will consider what constitutes an academic discipline, discuss forces that are stifling the academic integrity of accounting, and the premise that accounting, as currently constituted, is not an academic discipline, and offer speculation about how accounting could re-establish itself as a dynamic force within the university. Wednesday lunch will feature Shyam Sunder, who will share his vision as the incoming President of the AAA.

In addition to the plenary speakers, there are numerous panels with speakers and topics that will appeal to a broad cross-section of our membership. Many of our panelists and speakers come from the public sector, with high-level positions in the SEC, and other government agencies. A sample of these panels includes:

Financial Reporting and Control Risk in Today's Tax Environment
Moderator: George Plesko, University of Connecticut
Speakers: Kevin Brady, TaxStream, LLC; L. Charles Evans, Grant Thornton, LLP; Ed Outslay, Michigan State University; Joseph B. Ucuzoglu, U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

Washington, D.C.

The financial reporting of income taxes has come under greater scrutiny by the SEC and FASB, and risk management has become a key element of tax departments' functions. Issues to be covered include reporting tax contingencies, the link between FASB- and IRS-related disclosures, and SOX compliance issues.

The Foundations of Accounting

John Dickhaut, University of Minnesota; Greg Waymire, Emory University; Kevin McCabe, George Mason University

Modern accounting has evolved from centuries of accumulated experience in numerous civilizations. Its roots are deep and archaeological records bear witness to its fundamental role in the development of human civilization. Recently it has been argued that the roots of accounting spring from the challenges to human memory as societies become more complex. Evidence is beginning to emerge that accountings foundations can be seen in archaeological records, experimental choices, and even the functioning of the mammalian brain.

Researchers are beginning to build a program to study these foundations using archival data from anthropology, economic experiments, and even direct observation of the brain itself during decision-making tasks. Greg will discuss a framework for studying these foundations based on archival sources, outlining at the same time a motivation for experiments; John will discuss such experiments outlining the motivation for looking at accounting in the brain; and Kevin will discuss the emerging understanding of how accountings foundational concepts exist at a neurological level.

Beyond the Classroom: Service Learning in Accounting

D. V. Rama, Florida International University, will lead a panel on service learning in accounting. This interactive panel will discuss the theoretical and pedagogical aspects of this powerful active-learning strategy, as well as discuss the practical issues of implementing a service learning experience. Panelists will include Bernie Milano, KPMG, who will offer insights from practice; Mahendra Gujarathi, Bentley College, who will talk about the institutional factors that are important; Curtis DeBerg, California State University, Chico; and Janice Carr, California Polytechnic State University, who will speak about implementation issues; and Sue Ravenscroft, Iowa State University, who will offer insights about using service learning to develop ethical reasoning.

SEC/FASB/IASB Update

Panelists Mary Barth (IASB), Mike Crooch (FASB), and Scott Taub (SEC) will address current issues in regulation and standard setting. Terry Warfield, University of Wisconsin–Madison, will moderate.

Other sessions will include speakers from the SEC Office of Economic Analysis, and many public accounting firms. Sessions on teaching include the current educational and regulatory environment, how to work with difficult students, podcasting, teaching ethics and many others. Please check the AAA website for more information on sessions as it becomes available.

We are introducing a new initiative at this year's annual meeting. The Emerging and Innovative Research Session will feature research that is just too hot for any of the AAAs 15 sections to handle. You will want to stop by both to investigate the research on offer and to encourage those brave enough to submit papers to a new venture. The meeting will also reprise the great idea that Jane Mutchler and Joe Carcello started last year: New Scholar Concurrent Sessions. These sessions will involve two new faculty members or doctoral students receiving detailed feedback of a developmental nature from more senior faculty members in their discipline.

There will be research papers presented in over 210 concurrent sessions and many more presented at the research and teaching forums!

Please join us in Washington, D.C. this August for what I believe will be a truly memorable Annual Meeting. I look forward to seeing you there.

Plenary Sessions, Luncheons, Receptions, and Awards

Plenary sessions of the American Accounting Associations Annual Meeting will be held from 8:30 to 9:45 am on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, August 7–9, 2006. On Monday the plenary will feature the Outstanding Accounting Educator Award; Tuesday's plenary features presentation of the Wildman Medal Award; and the Notable Contributions to Accounting Literature Award will be presented during the Wednesday plenary. The Competitive Manuscript Award will be presented at the Tuesday luncheon and the Innovation in Accounting Education Award will be presented at the luncheon on Wednesday.

In addition to the presentation of those prestigious awards, this year's plenary sessions and luncheons showcase an impressive group of speakers from the academic, government, and professional worlds.

Receptions, luncheons, and breaks offer opportunities for networking with colleagues and getting caught up with friends. During the evening of Sunday, August 6, the Exhibit Hall will be the place to gather for the informal Early Bird Reception and a chance to check out the exhibits. Monday night, August 7, is the Welcome Reception that includes food and beverages, and an opportunity to enjoy the gathering of our larger community. On Tuesday night, August 8, we will celebrate with a themed reception, featuring traditional food and beverages, as well as ambience, that befit the meeting location.

Monday, August 7

R. Eugene Rice, the Monday plenary speaker, serves as Senior Scholar at the American Association of Colleges and Universities (AAC&U) and is on the faculty of Antioch University's new Ph.D. program in Leadership and Change. A member of the Accounting Education Change Commission (AECC) in the mid-1990s, for the last ten years Gene has been Director of the Forum on Faculty Roles and Rewards and the New Pathways projects at the American Association for Higher Education (AAHE). Before making the move to AAHE, he was Vice President and Dean of the Faculty at Antioch College, where he was Professor of Sociology and Religion. He also served as a Senior Fellow at the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, where he worked on the national study of the scholarly priorities of the American professoriate and collaborated with the late Ernest Boyer on the landmark Carnegie report Scholarship Reconsidered. Rice has written about and consulted on a wide array of topics and received many awards, including the Danforth fellowship and a National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship. His most recent publications include "Making a Place for the New American Scholar," forthcoming in a new book edited with Kerry Ann O'Meara titled Faculty Priorities Reconsidered: Encouraging Multiple Forms of Scholarship. In Change magazine's survey of America's higher education leaders, Gene Rice was recognized as one of a small group of "idea leaders" whose work has made a difference nationally. Rice is a graduate of Harvard Divinity School and received his Ph.D. from Harvard University.

Tuesday, August 8

Anthony Hopwood, Peter Moores Dean, Said Business School, Oxford University is the Presidential Scholar and Tuesday plenary speaker. After studying for a B.Sc. in Economics at the London School of Economics, Anthony Hopwood was a Fulbright Scholar at the Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago where he took an M.B.A. and a Ph.D. He has since taught at Manchester Business School, London Business School and at LSE, where he was Ernst & Young Professor of International Accounting and Financial Management from 1985 to 1995. He then came to Oxford as Professor in Management Studies, was elected the American Standard Companies Professor of Operations Management two years later, and in 1999 appointed Dean of the Said Business School. Professor Hopwood has written widely on accounting from a broad organizational and managerial perspective and is particularly interested in changing patterns of organizational information and control. From 1995 to 2003 he was President of the European Institute for Advanced Studies in Brussels. In 1998 he was voted Distinguished Academic of the Year by the British Accounting Association. In 2001 he was given a Lifetime Achievement Award by the American Accounting Association, and in 2005 was the recipient of the Leadership Award of the European Accounting Association.

The Tuesday luncheon speaker is Floyd Norris, Chief Financial Correspondent of the New York Times. He has written a weekly column for the financial section since September 1999, and has written extensively about accounting issues. In 1998, he was cited by the Financial Writers Association of New York for outstanding lifetime achievement. Mr. Norris attended the University of California, Irvine. He was a Walter Bagehot Fellow in Economics and Business Journalism at Columbia University for two terms and received an M.B.A. in 1982.

Wednesday, August 9

Wednesday's plenary session will feature a panel, "Is Accounting an Academic Discipline?" led by John Fellingham, The Ohio State University and Joel Demski, University of Florida. Speakers will address two interrelated questions: What forces are stifling the academic integrity of accounting? How might accounting re-establish itself as a dynamic force within the University?

The incoming AAA President for 2006–2007, Shyam Sunder, will share perspectives on the future of the Association when he speaks at the Wednesday luncheon. Educated as an engineer in India, he received his Master's and Ph.D. degrees from Carnegie Mellon University. A member of AAA since 1972, he has served on many AAA committees and as International Distinguished Visiting Lecturer and Presidential Scholar. He is a two-time recipient of the AAA-AICPA Notable Contributions to Accounting Literature Award and the AAA Competitive Manuscript Award.

You can attend plenary sessions, luncheons, award presentations, and select from more than 210 concurrent sessions, more than 200 forum papers, and 39 CPE sessions.

Presenters: Frank Beil, University of Minnesota; Ray Stephens, Ohio University.

SUNDAY — MORNING

CPE Session 14 8:00 am – 11:00 am Web-Based Technology Tools that Can Make a Real Difference in Accounting Education

This session shows how Blackboard/WebCT can be used to manage classroom concerns about academic integrity and content delivery. Learn how to import exam databases, conduct randomized testing, and design unique student-specific problem sets, all of which eliminate student cheating. Presenters: Anthony H. Catanach Jr., Villanova University; Noah P. Barsky, Villanova University.

CPE Session 15 8:00 am – 11:00 am Ten Tips for Improving College Teaching

Education is serious business. The lives of students are impacted by the effectiveness of their college classes. This workshop looks at possible improvements in "the learning triangle"—student and teacher preparation for class, the actual classroom experience, and post-class follow-up. Presenter: Joe Hoyle, University of Richmond.

CPE Session 16 8:00 am – 11:00 am An Innovative Model for Teaching the Introductory Financial Accounting Course

The workshop will focus on the innovative format of a financial accounting course that utilizes technology for: delivering content; classroom time for activities that promote student interaction; and the use of effective problem-solving techniques in a "learn-by-doing" environment. Presenters: Rama Ramamurthy, The Ohio State University; Teri Ziegler, The Ohio State University; Marc Smith, The Ohio State University.

CPE Session 17 8:00 am – 11:00 am Internet-Based Financial Reporting

A workshop on the emerging trends in the use of the Internet for financial reporting, with online demonstrations and examples. It will relate these to fundamental reporting principles and trends to broaden financial reporting. Presenter: Gerald Trites, St. Francis Xavier University.

CPE Session 18 8:00 am – 11:00 am Using a Corporate Annual Report to Improve Business Understanding

Presenters will demonstrate how to use a corporate annual report project in an Accounting Principles course at both the undergraduate and graduate levels to improve business and accounting understanding. Presenters: Brian Stanko, Loyola University Chicago; Thomas L. Zeller, Loyola University Chicago.

CPE Session 19 8:00 am – Noon Improving Critical Thinking through a Management Accounting Simulation

The workshops objective is to provide the knowledge, skills, and tools to enable participants to implement a decision-making simulation in managerial and cost accounting courses. The simulation improves students' analytical and critical-thinking skills and small group communication skills. Presenters: Pierre Titard, Southeastern Louisiana University; James E. De Franceschi, Southeastern Louisiana University.

CPE Session 20 8:00 am – Noon Continuous Assurance: From Concept to Implementation

Brings attendees up to speed on the concepts and tools of Continuous Auditing and describes the lessons learned by the presenter from pilot implementations that his team, in collaboration with KPMG, developed with internal auditors at pioneering Fortune 100 companies. Presenters: Michael Alles, Rutgers University; Lili Sun, Rutgers University; Miklos Vasarhelyi, Rutgers University; Alexander Kogan, Rutgers University; Donald Warren, Rutgers University.

CPE Session 21 8:00 am – Noon Developing and Assessing Oral Communication and Team Skills

Participants will learn strategies for developing, enhancing, and assessing oral communication and team skills, and they will take away examples of assignment prompts, skill development suggestions and instructions, competency descriptors, and assessment rubrics. Participants will have an opportunity to view and assess student skill performance. Presenters: Debra Kerby, Truman State University; Keith Harrison, Truman State University; Sandra Weber, Truman State University.

CPE Session 22 8:00 am – Noon Teaching Strategic Cost Management

This workshop covers strategic positioning, value chain analysis, the balanced scorecard, activity-based costing, customer profitability analysis, strategic performance measurement, and other topics in cost management. The workshop provides guidance in using cases and other teaching materials, based on the instructors' teaching experience. Presenters: Edward Blocher, The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; David E. Stout, Youngstown State University; Gary Cokins, SAS Institute.

CPE Session 23 8:00 am – Noon Introduction to XBRL with Current Events and Classroom Applications

XBRL (eXtensible Business Reporting Language) is an XML (eXtensible Markup Language) vocabulary for the "publication, exchange, and analysis of complex financial information." Participants will be exposed to XBRL documents and taxonomies, classroom-tested applications, the basics of XBRL and the new XBRL-GL, and current events in XBRL. Presenters: Clinton White, University of Delaware; Roger S. Debreceeny, University of Hawaii at Manoa; Glen Gray, California State University, Northridge.

CPE Session 24 8:00 am – Noon Applied Financial Statement Analysis

This class presents an applied approach to teaching financial statement analysis and equity valuation. Our aim is to span the void between the abstract theoretical treatment of financial statement analysis and the practical problem of analyzing an actual company using real-world data. Presenters: Ray Stephens, Ohio University; Russell Lundholm, University of Michigan; Richard Sloan, University of Michigan. Sponsor: Financial Accounting and Reporting.

CPE Session 25 8:00 am – Noon Current Issues in Financial Reporting

The workshop will explore a variety of topics that are on the current agenda of the FASB, including financial instruments, fair values, business combinations, consolidations, revenue recognition, liability recognition, equity compensation, international convergence, and performance reporting, including some joint with the IASB. Presenters: Ray Stephens, Ohio University; Katherine Schipper, Financial Accounting Standards Board

CPE Session 26 8:00 am – Noon Linking Practice with What We Do in the Classroom

Classroom instruction meets the real world. Come hear how to link what is happening in the practice of governmental accounting to what we do in the classroom. Speakers include representatives from the GASB, OMB, FASAB, and/or GAO. Presenter: G. Robert Smith, Jr., Middle Tennessee State University. Sponsor: Government and Nonprofit Section.

To avoid a late fee,
register on or before June 26.

Half-day CPE Sessions are $65 each and full-day sessions are $130.

SUNDAY — AFTERNOON

CPE Session 27 1:00 pm – 4:00 pm Using Real-World Corporate Cases in Teaching Financial Accounting and Financial Statement Analysis

The workshop will cover the use of cases, based on annual reports of real-world companies, in teaching Introductory and Intermediate Accounting and Financial Statement Analysis. Each participant will receive a CD containing a student handout that can be adapted for the participants own style and use. Presenter: Mostafa Maksy, Northeastern Illinois University.

CPE Session 28 1:00 pm – 4:00 pm Litigation Support: A Growing Accounting Niche

The purpose of this seminar is to cover the best practices of litigation services. This seminar begins with an introduction to the Federal Rules of Evidence, including pleadings. There is a survey of the general concepts of judicial procedures and evidence applicable to forensic accounting. Presenter: D. Larry Crumbley, Louisiana State University.

CPE Session 29 1:00 pm – 4:00 pm Government and Nonprofit Research: Building the Bridge between Practice and Theory

This session will present a panel of accounting, reporting, and auditing practitioners from the nonprofit and governmental arenas, along with academics who do research in these areas. The discussion will focus on contemporary issues related to corporate governance, transparency, and accountability. Presenters: Linda M. Parsons, George Mason University; To Be Announced. Sponsor: Government and Nonprofit Section.

CPE Session 30 1:00 pm – 4:00 pm Using Student Response Systems (Clickers) to Improve Teaching Effectiveness and Administrative Efficiency

Student Response Systems (SRSs) use response pads (clickers) to provide an immediate exchange of information between student and teacher, even in mass section classes. This real-time exchange motivates students to attend class, show up on time, and pay attention during class. This presentation provides a hands-on SRS learning experience. Presenters: Thomas P. Edmonds, University of Alabama at Birmingham; Christopher T. Edmonds, University of Alabama at Birmingham.

CPE Session 31 1:00 pm – 4:00 pm Business Valuation Case Analysis

In this course we will conduct an actual business valuation case analysis. The case will emphasize the practical issues commonly addressed by business valuation professionals in estimating a value under either the FASBs new Fair Value or the IRS Fair Market Value standard of value. Presenter: Keith Sellers, Fort Lewis College.

CPE Session 32 1:00 pm – 4:30 pm Building a Multimedia-Enhanced Accounting Course on Course Management Systems (Moodle, Angel, WebCT Vista Edition)

The objective of this workshop will be to illustrate the creation of SCORM (Sharable Courseware Object Reference Model) compliant accounting courseware modules delivered via WebCT Vista Edition. Presenter: Richard Campbell, University of Rio Grande.

CPE Session 33 1:00 pm – 4:30 pm Reengineering Business Reporting: Toward a New Paradigm for Measuring, Managing, and Communicating Firm Performance

This session invites researchers to participate in thinking outside the box about what financial reporting would look like if we began developing it from scratch for the 21st century. This initiative complements the incremental approach toward reform that is being undertaken by Enhanced Business Reporting Consortium. Presenters: Michael Alles, Rutgers University; Miklos Vasarhelyi, Rutgers University.

CPE Session 34 1:00 pm – 4:30 pm Journal Editors Talk about Emerging Technology Research

The objective of the workshop is to provide attendees access to information about what journal editors are looking for in the areas of emerging technologies and artificial intelligence research. Journal editors and associate editors will discuss what they feel are some of the key research issues. Presenters: Daniel O'Leary, University of Southern California; Steve Sutton, University of Central Florida; Bob Berry, University of Nottingham; Miklos Vasarhelyi, Rutgers University. Sponsor: Artificial Intelligence/Emerging Technologies.

2006 Annual Meeting Placement Center

The American Accounting Association maintains a Placement Center at the Annual Meeting of the Association for the benefit of its members. The Center is located in the headquarters hotel. Individuals seeking positions and institutions seeking faculty, or other related academic personnel, can investigate opportunities of interest. The Placement Center is available only to fully registered meeting participants. Access is limited to registrants displaying a 2006 Annual Meeting badge.

The Placement Center provides sets of resumes and position announcements. Loose-leaf binders are available at the Placement Center for perusal: one contains resumes of individuals seeking positions or relocation, and the other contains descriptions of positions available at various institutions in the United States and abroad. The position books are divided into geographical sections. Resumes and position announcements can be purchased during and after the meeting. Resumes and position announcement submissions received by June 26 will be posted on the AAA website by July 10 unless otherwise specified. The postings will remain on the AAA website until November 1. Placement submissions received after June 26 will be posted on the website after the Annual Meeting if an electronic file is received.

Complete information, including guidelines, submission instructions, and pricing, is available on our web site at: <http://aaahq.org/AM2006/placement.cfm>.

NEW—Extended Concurrent Sessions

Detection of Deception

For the 2006 Annual Meeting, we will be offering two special sessions on detecting deceptive behavior and identifying patterns of behavior that indicate deception. The Detection of Deception sessions are sponsored by PricewaterhouseCoopers and introduce participants to the Business Intelligence Advisors (BIA) Tactical Behavioral Assessment (TBA) model®, a framework to recognize and assess evasive and deceptive verbal and nonverbal behavior. BIAs techniques give auditors the skills to better assess information received in any interview or conversation and pursue a line of questioning to conclusion in a nonconfrontational manner.

BIA has helped Big 4 audit firms as well as prominent Fortune 500 internal audit departments navigate the challenges of the new corporate fraud landscape through its unique training in Detection of Deception. This program, designed to develop tools and techniques to heighten inquiry and evaluation skills, was developed by the world's leading intelligence and interview experts from organizations such as the CIA, FBI, NSA, and Secret Service, in combination with audit and corporate training specialists.

Primary learning topics include:

- Define and review the concept of "professional skepticism" and how to implement this mindset effectively in an interview
- Understand common problems related to bias and behavioral misconceptions
- Understand the use of the BIA TBA model® to detect deception and identify responses meriting further exploration
- Recognize the verbal and nonverbal behaviors that may indicate deception
- Apply the TBA model to video-case interview scenarios

The two sessions are scheduled to be held on Tuesday, August 8, 8:00 am–12:00 pm and from 1:45–5:45 pm. Attendance is limited to meeting registrants with a maximum of 40 participants per session and a ticket will be required. There is no charge for attending the sessions. Sign up for one of the sessions by checking Box F on the 2006 Annual Meeting registration form.

Note: You need only attend the morning or the afternoon session as the two sessions are the same.

Emerging and Innovative Research Projects

New interactive session highlighting the best of emerging and innovative research ideas.

Requests for Meeting Space and Alumni Functions

Meeting space may be reserved for events held during the 2006 AAA Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C. Limited space is available Sunday through Wednesday, August 6–9.

Functions may be scheduled during the following times (space permitting):

Sunday, August 6—Breakfast, Lunch, Dinner, and Evening functions

Monday, August 7—Breakfast, Lunch, and Evening functions

Tuesday, August 8—Breakfast and Evening functions

Wednesday, August 9—Breakfast and Evening functions

Breakfast functions should be scheduled from 7:00 AM to 8:15 AM and luncheons from 12:00 NOON to 1:30 PM. Menu selection will be made directly with the Hotel Catering Department and the hotel will bill each group directly.

Requests for space can be made by contacting Debbie Gardner at the American Accounting Association, debbie@aaahq.org or (941) 556-4101.

We will need to know the period during which you wish to hold your meeting/function (date, time, and length), the name of the meeting/function, the estimated attendance, and the name, address, telephone, and email address of the contact person. The American Accounting Association will then assign a room, if available, for the meeting/function and notify the Hotel Catering Department if applicable.

Americans with Disabilities Act

It is the intention of the American Accounting Association to comply fully with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). Members planning to attend this meeting who have special needs, as covered by the ADA, are requested to notify Debbie Gardner at the American Accounting Association, debbie@aaahq.org or (941) 556-4101, to facilitate identification and accommodation of these needs by the Association.

Special Food Requirements

Members attending the Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C. who require vegetarian meals must so indicate on the registration form. Information regarding entrees at the luncheons will be available at the AAA registration desk at the headquarters hotel.

On-site ticket sales for meal functions will be limited.
