

REVISED Call for Papers: Accounting Ethics Symposium 2026 (NOTE DATE CHANGE)

The Centre for Accounting Ethics at the University of Waterloo 7th Biennial Symposium: Submission Deadline June 1, 2026.

The symposium aims to bring together researchers, educators, practitioners, and students to share and discuss current issues and challenges in accounting ethics. The paper presentations will include a panel discussion of the paper by the authors, an academic discussant, and a practitioner discussant to encourage dialogue between academics and the profession on relevant ethics issues.

Symposium Details

The symposium will be held on September 17th and 18th, 2026, in Toronto, Ontario. Submissions that are accepted for the symposium may be considered as submissions to a special section of an issue of the journal Accounting and the Public Interest. (Original dates have been changed to reduce conflict with other related conferences.)

Theme: ACCOUNTING ETHICS

We encourage researchers to submit papers that address any aspect of accounting ethics, using any research methodology (e.g., empirical archival, experimental, analytical, or other methods). The following topics are only some examples of possible areas of interest, but they are not meant to be exhaustive or restrictive:

- The ethical considerations in using AI, machine learning, blockchain, or big data in accounting practices.
- Psychological and organizational factors that influence ethical or unethical choices.
- Ethical considerations in ESG metrics, reporting transparency, and stakeholder impacts.
- The effectiveness, ethical implications, and psychological burden of whistleblowing within accounting firms.
- Tax avoidance and tax planning in a global context.
- The tension between managerial duties and ethical responsibilities when dealing with internal financial information.
- Variations in ethical accounting practices across different cultural, economic, or political landscapes.
- The ethical challenges faced by accountants in government and non-profit organizations.
- Ethical considerations during financial crises, pandemics, or other emergency situations.
- The ethical dilemmas involved in reporting on social impact, employee welfare, and community engagement.

CENTRE FOR ACCOUNTING ETHICS UNIVERSITY OF WATERLOO

The symposium encourages submissions that adopt an interdisciplinary, comparative, or critical approach to accounting ethics. The symposium also welcomes papers that explore the collaboration and communication between academics and practitioners in accounting ethics.

Paper Submission Process

Papers should be submitted electronically as a PDF file to Jenny Rothwell at jrothwell@uwaterloo.ca by July 1, 2026. Papers should be original and not previously published. If the paper is currently under review elsewhere, authors must disclose this at the time of submission. Papers should be written in English and follow the APA style. Papers should have an abstract of no more than 250 words.

Papers will be reviewed by a panel of experts and selected based on their relevance, quality, originality, and contribution to the field of accounting ethics. Accepted paper authors will be invited to submit to the journal Accounting and the Public Interest, where they will go through the journal's review process. Acceptance to the symposium does not guarantee acceptance to the journal.

Notice of acceptance will be sent by July 15, 2026.

Papers accepted subject to revision must be revised by August 31, 2026.

About the Centre for Accounting Ethics

The Centre for Accounting Ethics was established in 1991 through a grant from the Auditing and Accounting Development Fund. The Centre supports projects designed to enhance the teaching of ethics to accounting students and the research of ethical issues in accounting. The Centre also organizes biennial symposiums and annual workshops on accounting ethics. For more information about the Centre, please visit <https://uwaterloo.ca/centre-for-accounting-ethics/>.

We look forward to receiving your submissions and seeing you at the symposium!

Sincerely,

Krista Fiolleau
