It is with great enthusiasm that I invite you to the 2007 American Accounting Association's Annual Meeting in Chicago, Illinois on Sunday, August 5 through Wednesday August 8. With its theme, "Imagined Worlds of Accounting," the meeting will aim to explore new directions for all aspects of our discipline.

The centerpiece of the meeting is a series of three plenary sessions on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday mornings. On Monday, the plenary speakers will help us envision new links between Accounting scholarship and the fields of Anthropology and Archaeology. Professor Joseph Henrich will speak on "Culture and the Nature of Human Sociality." Professor Henrich's theoretical and empirical research has been published in Nature and Science, he has coedited Foundations of Human Societies and is the coauthor of Why Humans Cooperate. The second plenary speaker on Monday morning is Professor Denise Schmandt-Besserat, who will speak on "The Origin of Accounting." Professor Schmandt-Besserat's research on prehistoric tokens ties these artifacts to the first human use of accounting. Her book based on this research, How Writing Came About, was named by American Scientist as one of the 100 books that most shaped science in the 20th century.

On Tuesday morning, Professors Michael Hechter and Eric Posner will explore the emergence of social norms. Professor Hechter is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Social Norms (2005) is among his extensive writings on nationalism and group solidarity, rational choice explanations of macro-social outcomes, and the role and measurement of individual values in social theory. Professor Posner's books include Law and Social Norms (2000) and Chicago Lectures on Law and Economics (2000). These talks will help us chart new directions to better understand how accounting norms may develop in the absence of explicit standard setting.

Professors Robert E. Lucas, Jr. and Vernon L. Smith will explore economic issues that I believe will be relevant to future accounting scholarship in Wednesday morning's plenary session. Professor Lucas, who will speak on the economics of growth, has published several books and his articles have appeared in most leading academic journals in economics. He received the 1995 Sveriges Riksbank Prize in Economic Sciences in Memory of Alfred Nobel "for having developed and applied the hypothesis of rational expectations, and thereby having transformed macroeconomic analysis and deepened our understanding of economic policy.” Professor Smith will speak on “Hayek and the Experiment.” He has written extensively on capital theory, finance, natural resource economics and experimental economics, and was awarded the Sveriges Riksbank Prize in Economic Sciences in Memory of Alfred Nobel in 2002 “for having established laboratory experiments as a tool in empirical economic analysis, especially in the study of alternative market mechanisms.”

A series of concurrent sessions will follow up on the themes raised in the plenary sessions to focus on developing links between the plenary addresses and accounting scholarship. These sessions will feature remarks by noted accounting scholars on how these areas of scholarly inquiry are relevant to the work of AAA members. In addition, there will be ample opportunity for Q&A to raise pertinent issues. Finally, some of the afternoon concurrent sessions have been designed with the intent of further developing the themes raised in the morning of each day.

The highlight of Tuesday lunch is an address by one of our own—the 2007 Presidential Scholar John Dickhaut of the University of Minnesota. In addition to a long line of experimental work in accounting and economics, John has made fundamental contributions in the emerging area of “Neuroeconomics.” His recent research has attracted attention from scholars in Economics and Neuroscience as well as scholars in other business disciplines like Marketing. More recently, he has returned to his “accounting roots” with papers on the foundations of accounting. His exploration of the links between accounting foundations and the human brain promises insights into “Imagined Worlds of Accounting.”

Under the leadership of Greg Waymire, the AAA Annual Meeting Program Advisory Committee is planning well over 200 concurrent and panel sessions, including several on issues such as data mining, the history of accounting scholarship, fundamental changes to the accounting curriculum, financial literacy, and the archiving of accounting data.

I have worked with the Program Advisory Committee to make sure that we use all the days of the meeting to assemble a program of maximum quality that will excite the imaginations of our members and serve as a resource to bolster their intellectual capital. Consequently, I encourage you to plan on staying for the entire meeting to avoid missing some of the great events in store for the afternoon of the final day of the meeting.

As noted already, our Wednesday plenary session features two Nobel Laureates in Economics. An important panel session on “Big Unanswered Questions in Accounting” is set for Wednesday afternoon. This session will provide impetus for future scholarship by posing the following question to a group of noted accounting scholars: “What is the most important issue in Accounting that we think we understand but in fact do not?” The scholars tackling this question include Ray Ball, Rob Bloomfield, Joel Demski, Steve Huddart, and Venky Nagar. The day will close with a raffle drawing for a prize immediately following the last session of the Meeting.

While I hope that this year’s program will be sufficient to hold your interest for four days, I do encourage you to take advantage of your visit to enjoy the city of Chicago. The convention hotels, the Chicago Hilton and the Hilton Palmer House, are a short walk away from the world-renowned Chicago Art Institute, the historic Grant Park, and the beautiful lakefront. Other nearby museums include the Field Museum of Natural History, the Shedd Aquarium, and the Adler Planetarium. And, of course, Chicago is home to shopping on Michigan Avenue’s Magnificent Mile, some of the best restaurants and theater in the country, and home to two major league baseball teams.

So, I hope you’ll plan to attend the 2007 AAA Annual Meeting, which promises an extraordinary opportunity to build your intellectual capital, renew old friendships or develop new ones, and explore the boundaries of imagination in one of the great cities of the world.

Plenary Sessions, Luncheons, Receptions, and Awards

Plenary sessions of the American Accounting Association's Annual Meeting will be held from 8:30 to 9:45 AM on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, August 6–8, 2007. This year's plenary sessions feature a wide ranging and impressive group of speakers from anthropology, archaeology, global studies, economics and law. Receptions, luncheons, and breaks offer opportunities for networking with colleagues and catching up with friends. During the evening of Sunday, August 5, the Exhibit Hall will host the informal Early Bird Reception and a chance to check out the exhibits. Also on Sunday evening the new Career Fair will be held near the Exhibit Hall. Monday night, August 6, is the Welcome Reception that includes food and beverages, and an opportunity to enjoy the gathering of our larger community. On Tuesday night, August 7, we will celebrate with a themed reception, featuring food and beverages to benefit the meeting location.

Monday, August 6

Monday's plenary speakers will address the links between accounting and the fields of anthropology and archaeology.

Anthropologist Joe Henrich (UCLA Ph.D.) holds the Canada Research Chair in Culture, Cognition and Evolution and is an Associate Professor of Psychology and Economics at the University of British Columbia. In 2004 he was awarded the Presidential Early Career Award for Scientists and Engineers, the highest honor bestowed by the United States on young scientists. His theoretical and empirical research has been published in a wide range of journals, including Nature, Science, Current Anthropology, American Antiquity, American Economic Review, Journal of Theoretical Biology, and Behavioral and Brain Sciences. He coedited the volume Foundations of Human Societies, and coauthored Why Humans Cooperate, which is forthcoming in 2007.

Denise Schmandt-Besserat is Professor Emerita of Art and Middle Eastern Studies at The University of Texas at Austin. Her field is the art and archaeology of the ancient Near East. She was trained at the Ecole du Louvre, Paris, France and her work is on the origin of writing and counting. Her publications include: How Writing Came About, Before Writing, The History of Counting, and numerous articles in major scholarly and popular journals (Science, Scientific American, Archaeology, American Journal of Archaeology, and Archaeology Odyssey). Her work has been widely reported in the public media (Scientific American, Time, Life, New York Times, The Washington Post, Los Angeles Times). She was featured in several television programs.

Tuesday, August 7

The Tuesday plenary session will feature Michael Hechter and Eric Posner speaking on the emergence of social norms.

Michael Hechter is an Elected Fellow of the American Academy of Arts & Sciences. He has taught at the Universities of Washington, Arizona and Oxford. Hechter is the author of numerous books, including Internal Colonialism: The Celtic Fringe in British National Development, 1536-1966, Principles of Group Solidarity, and Containing Nationalism. His articles have appeared in the American Journal of Sociology, Demography, Journal of Theoretical Politics, Rationality and Society, Sociological Theory, European Sociological Review, and many other journals. Hechter's research revolves around three distinct themes: the causes of nationalism and group solidarity; rational choice explanations of macrosocial outcomes, and the role and measurement of individual values in social theory.

Eric Posner has authored or co-authored many books including Law and Social Norms, Chicago Lectures in Law and Economics, The Limits of International Law, New Foundations of Cost-Benefit Analysis, and Terror in the Balance: Security, Liberty, and the Courts. He is also an editor of the Journal of Legal Studies. He has published articles on bankruptcy law, contract law, international law, cost-benefit analysis, constitutional law, and administrative law, and has taught courses on international law, foreign relations law, contracts, employment law, bankruptcy law, secured transactions, and game theory and the law. His current research focuses on international law, immigration law, and foreign relations law. He is a graduate of Yale College and Harvard Law School.

John Dickhaut is this year's Presidential Scholar and he will speak during the Tuesday luncheon. Dickhaut's research focuses on asking fundamental economic questions in the economics laboratory. Using experiments, he has broken ground in the areas of the role of information in economics, the laboratory study of preferences, trust, and neuroeconomics. Fundamental questions that Dickhaut continues to address are the impact of information processing considerations on the design of societal institutions, the ability to induce and infer preferences, the endogeneity of record keeping, verifiability, and formalized accounting in societies, the efficiency of prices of risky assets, and the nature of the choice process in the human neural system.

Guest registration fee required for name badge and admittance to events for guests 12 and older.

Vernon L. Smith

Gary John Previts

Wednesday, August 8

Robert E. Lucas, Jr. is a Fellow of the Econometric Society, a Member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and a Member of National Academy of Sciences. He is a former editor of the Journal of Political Economy. He has published several books and articles in Journal of Political Economy, Econometrica, American Economic Review, Journal of the American Statistical Association, Journal of Economic Theory, Journal of Monetary Economics, and other leading academic journals. In 1995 Professor Lucas received the Nobel Prize in Economic Science “for having developed and applied the hypothesis of rational expectations, and thereby having transformed macroeconomic analysis and deepened our understanding of economic policy.” His current research examines monetary theory, growth, and development.

Vernon L. Smith, who was awarded the Nobel Prize in Economics, 2002, “for having established laboratory experiments as a tool in empirical economic analysis, especially in the study of alternative market mechanisms,” is currently Professor of Economics and Law at George Mason University and research scholar in the Interdisciplinary Center for Economic Science in Arlington, VA. Dr. Smith is the President of the International Foundation for Research in Experimental Economics, which he helped found in 1997. Professor Smith received his bachelor’s degree from California Institute of Technology, his master’s from the University of Kansas, and his Ph.D. from Harvard. He has authored or co-authored over 250 articles and books on capital theory, finance, natural resource economics, and experimental economics.

During the Wednesday luncheon, incoming AAA President for 2007–2008, Gary J. Previts will address “Our AAA Member Community: Vision, Purpose, and Impact,” which will look at our diversity of interests, our common heritage and history, and our changing member profile, including the increase in international members, all of which affect what we do as a discipline and as a profession to serve the needs of students and more broadly, the needs of society. Previts is Professor of Accountancy, Case Western Reserve University. He has served as a member of the AAA Executive Committee, and Chair/VP of the Ohio Region, and has received that region’s Outstanding Educator Award. He has twice been program chair of the AAA Annual Meeting (1978 and 1990) and has served on numerous AAA Committees or Task Forces. Previts has authored several books and published scores of papers on the development of accounting thought, regulation and education and is editor of Research in Accounting Regulation. He has received the Educator Lifetime Achievement Award of the AICPA.

You can attend plenary sessions, luncheons, award presentations, and select from more than 240 concurrent sessions, more than 200 forum papers, and 40 CPE sessions.

Special CPE Session for Accounting Professionals Considering Teaching

As part of AAA's outreach to accounting professionals, in light of the Ph.D. shortage, one of this year's Continuing Professional Education sessions (CPEs) at the Annual Meeting will offer accounting professionals with significant practice experience, but limited or no teaching experience in a university setting, the opportunity to learn more about moving into a full-time career in education. An all-day session on Saturday, August 4, will focus in the morning on Orientation for Aspiring Profession-Centered Faculty (Professionally Qualified), and in the afternoon on Teaching Tips from Master Teachers.

The registration fee of $250 will also include full membership in the AAA for the 2007–2008 member year with electronic access to one journal and an early Saturday evening reception. Participants will also have the option of registering for Sunday CPE sessions (usually available only to those attending the Annual Meeting) at a discounted rate of $150, and complimentary registration to the Annual Meeting if they attend both the Saturday and Sunday sessions. We thank the APLG, AICPA, Ph.D. Project, and IMA for helping to publicize this event.

For more information or to refer an interested accounting professional, contact Kevin Stocks (Kevin_stocks@byu.edu) or Susan Crosson (Susan.Crosson@sfcc.edu).

AAA Meeting Attendees with Limited Mobility

If you anticipate having limited mobility during your participation in the AAA Annual Meeting in Chicago, it is very important that you notify the hotel when you make your reservations, and when you check into the hotel. Should there be an emergency that would require evacuation, hotel staff need to know that you would require assistance. This includes temporary mobility issues that might unexpectedly slow you down like an injury, crutches, etc. Please request instructions directly from the hotel about how to proceed in case of an emergency.

Annual Meeting Career Fair “A Networking Path to Your Future”

We are pleased to announce an exciting new opportunity—the first American Accounting Association Career Fair.

- Network and meet people
- Collect or hand out resumes
- Start scheduling follow-up interviews during the Annual Meeting

The Career Fair will take place on Sunday, August 5th from 4:00 to 7:00 pm near the Exhibit Area in conjunction with the Early Bird Reception.

Those seeking positions may participate free of charge. Academic recruiters will be provided a 4' x 8' board that will accommodate posters, a table for handouts and two chairs for a cost of $100.00.

This event will be open to all Annual Meeting registrants. Employers can register for the Career Fair by going to the AAA's Annual Meeting website. No registration is required for those seeking positions. If you have any questions please contact Barbara Brady at Barbara@aaahq.org or call 941-556-4121.

2007 Annual Meeting Placement Center—Supporting Accounting Program Communities

The American Accounting Association's Placement Center at the 2007 Annual Meeting has been revamped for 2007. Located in the headquarters hotel, the Hilton Chicago, this is the place to connect for applicants seeking positions and for institutions seeking faculty and other academic staff.

For those seeking to fill positions and for candidates the Annual Meeting is an exciting and challenging process. To better support participants in the Placement Center this year, new tools and services will be available for position seekers and recruiting institutions. Experienced participants will find a few new guidelines in place as well.

2007 Placement Center Guidelines

- Access to the Placement Center will be limited to enrolled Placement Center participants who must submit either a Position Announcement or Resume/Vita. Placement Center Passports will be given to all enrolled participants. Go to the AAA Annual Meeting web page and click on Placement Center/Career Fair Information to post a resume or a position.
- Placement Center Passports and Name Badges will be required for entry into the Placement Center. Badges are provided to all AAA Annual Meeting registrants.
- Each employer and applicant will be assigned a private mailbox and message forms will be available for communications between interested parties. Enrolled applicants may drop off resumes/vitae and enrolled employers may check boxes for any notes or resumes. Any items left in Employer mail boxes will be mailed after the conference.

This Year the Placement Center Offers

- Online access to Annual Meeting Placements listings for enrolled participants prior to and following the meeting until November 1, 2007
- Online submission for applicants and employers
- Weekly updates of the Placements database prior to the Annual Meeting dates
- Onsite access via computers in the Placement Center to job listings and applicant files
- Printer and copier for Placement Center participants
- Bulletin boards for enrolled applicants and employers

Brand New for 2007

- Institutions have the option to reserve an interview table in the Placement Center. Interviews can be conducted and materials can be kept available and displayed. Go to the AAA Annual Meeting web page and click on Placement Center/Career Fair Information to reserve a spot at the Career Fair.
- AAA Career Fair will be a new opportunity to network, share materials, and highlight or learn about institutions recruiting, or planning to recruit in the near future. Held on Sunday from 4:00-7:00pm to overlap the Early Bird Reception, this new event will be a broad opportunity for finding potential colleagues. Go to the AAA Annual Meeting web page and click on Placement Center/Career Fair Information to reserve a spot at the Career Fair.

Requests for Meeting Space, Social and Alumni Functions

Meeting space may be reserved for events held during the 2007 AAA Annual Meeting in Chicago, IL. Limited space is available Sunday through Wednesday, August 5–8.

Functions may be scheduled during the following times (space permitting):

Sunday, August 5—Breakfast, Lunch, Dinner, and Evening functions

Monday, August 6—Breakfast, Lunch, and Evening functions

Tuesday, August 7—Breakfast and Evening functions

Wednesday, August 8—Breakfast and Evening functions

Breakfast functions should be scheduled from 6:45 AM to 8:15 AM and luncheons from 12:15 PM to 2:00 PM. Menu selection will be made directly with the Hotel Catering Department and the hotel will bill each group directly.

Requests for space can be made by contacting Debbie Gardner at the American Accounting Association, debbie@aaahq.org or (941) 556-4101.

We will need to know the period during which you wish to hold your meeting/function (date, time, and length), the name of the meeting/function, the estimated attendance, and the name, address, telephone, and email address of the contact person. The American Accounting Association will then assign a room, if available, for the meeting/function and notify the Hotel Catering Department if applicable.

Americans with Disabilities Act

It is the intention of the American Accounting Association to comply fully with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). Members planning to attend this meeting who have special needs, as covered by the ADA, are requested to notify Debbie Gardner at the American Accounting Association, debbie@aaahq.org or (941) 556-4101, to facilitate identification and accommodation of these needs by the Association.

AAA Meeting Attendees with Limited Mobility

If you anticipate having limited mobility during your participation in the AAA Annual Meeting in Chicago, it is very important that you notify the hotel when you make your reservations, and when you check into the hotel. Should there be an emergency that would require evacuation, hotel staff need to know that you would require assistance. This includes temporary mobility issues that might unexpectedly slow you down like an injury, crutches, etc. Please request instructions directly from the hotel about how to proceed in case of an emergency.

Special Food Requirements

Members attending the Annual Meeting in Chicago, Illinois who require vegetarian meals must so indicate on the registration form. Information regarding entrees at the luncheons will be available at the AAA registration desk at the headquarters hotel.

On-site ticket sales for meal functions will be limited.
